I'm human

Hometown boys wrestling league

Here's a rewritten version of the text: I'm sharing something that might not appeal to everyone, but if you enjoy watching guys get knocked out and then... well, let's just say things getting interesting, then you might like this video from HBWL. It's basically guys wrestling, with one or both getting taken down and stripped. The rest is up to your imagination! There's a preview here: [link] and the full video can be found at Badongo. If you guys enjoy it, I'd be happy to upload another one. Why do they cover their...ahem...certain areas? It's all about building anticipation and encouraging viewers to pay for the full video where everything is revealed. The most tantalizing part of these videos is when the guys' clothes are taken off while they're unconscious. Maybe it's too tame for some, but I think it's quite effective! Some people might find this too tame, though. They want to see more...ahem...exposure! I love these kinds of videos and would be happy to share more if you guys enjoy them! If you're interested in seeing more, you can download the video from Badongo. Just remember to register first and then follow the prompts. There should be a "download your file" button on the right side of the page once you've entered the required text. The code can be found on the page, enter it into the box below and click "download your file". People are having trouble downloading two Badongo files which always stop at around 10% and can't be continued. If anyone who has uploaded those clips can upload them to another host, that would be great. The HBWL website is very good and worth checking out. Welcome back to Stampede Wrestling's historic past. Last week I had a problem with my computer, but this time it's working well. Let's look at tag team wrestling featuring the Kiwis, who later became famous in the WWF as the Bushwhackers. The Kiwis were facing the Hart brothers, including young Bret and his older brother Keith. Although Bret went on to become a famous WWF champion, Keith could have achieved greatness too if he had more opportunities. However, the Kiwis still shined in Stampede as a tag team after training and gaining experience on the road. Stampede Wrestling legends and timeless moments await us in our next watch!